Why Not a Local Audit of Local Newspaper
Circulations?

THE GLENDALE EVENING NEWS came out in a statement in its yesterday's issue to the effect that it had a circulation of 6000 copies per day.

It is our opinion that this statement was made through some error, for we have reliable information which refutes it.

But the statement stands in cold print and must be explained in some manner.

According to the sworn statement of the News editor, made on October 1 and furnished to the postoffice officials, their circulation was 3336. The circulation of the Glendale Daily Press at that time was 4985.

SINCE that time the Glendale News has made no special effort to increase its circulation, while the Glendale Press has a crew working every day.

Our paid circulation today is around 6000, and we claim this circulation to be 2000 in excess of the paid circulation of any Glendale newspaper.

Each statement of a newspaper should be carefully gone over before being published. They are subject to the closest scrutiny by keen-eyed merchants. The Glendale Daily Press has been most conservative in its statements.

THE advertisers of Glendale are entitled to know what the circulation is of any newspaper in which they advertise.

There should be no secret as to the circulation of any newspaper. There is none, so far as we are concerned. All are invited to verify our circulation claims.

FOR the benefit of the public we make the following suggestion: That each of the papers employ an auditor to form an investigating committee of three, the third member to be a representative from the Glendale Credit association. This committee to be given full authority and access to all circulation records of both papers. The committee to make a careful check and furnish a sworn statement showing the paid circulation of both papers.

THIS will enable the merchants of Glendale to know which paper is entitled to carry the caption claiming the largest paid circulation. Advertisers must recognize that when they buy advertising they must buy circulation, but this circulation must be a paid circulation and not a free distribution, a circularizing of the city.

LUNAR ECLIPSE VISIBLE TONIGHT

CHICAGO, March 2. (A. P.)—A lunar eclipse will be visible in North America tonight.

Edwin B. Frost, director of Yerkes Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., explained the eclipse will occur as the moon runs into the shadow of the earth.

The first trace can be seen at 8:13 central standard time, with the southwestern portion of the moon becoming slightly obscured. The height of eclipse will be reached about 9:32 and the shadow will leave the northwestern portion at 10:35.

The lower five-eighths will not be dimmed.

BELHURST TRACT MAPS SUBMITTED

Plat of New Area Is Accepted by the City Council

WATER WITH LAND Leimert Company Shows Seven Hundred Acres Is Open

The map of the Bellhurst tract addition, which was offered to the Glendale city council by Engineer Edward M. Lynch, representative for the Walter H. Leimert Co., was, as corrected, tentatively accepted by that body at its meeting Thursday night. The council agreed to accept the map, providing Mr. Lynch will bring in a drawing as corrected at last night's session, and a letter stating that the company will transfer to the city all water rights that legally go with the land, all of which the Leimert company is willing to do. This action opens the way to the opening of this tract to the people of Glendale on Saturday.

In this entire property, which includes the Ross and Thom estates, there are about 700 acres. Two hundred acres of this land have been purchased by the Leimert company and the first piece to be placed on the market will consist of 33 acres, which has been divided into 454 lots, the prices of which will range from $1300 to $4400. It is claimed that all of the 200 acres of land will be placed on the market this year.

This tract extends from the wash north toward the foothills as Geneva, a bridge is now engaged in pulling the trees from the streets. The street work is being done by Bates & Borland of Los Angeles.

The improvements will include sidewalks and curbs, three-inch macadam roadways, with heavier streets for the main highways. Telephones, gas, water, electricity and every other improvement will be put in. The building restrictions run from $3500 up.

All of the engineering work on the tract has been completed, and a large tractor is now engaged in pulling the trees from the streets. The street work is being done by Bates & Borland of Los Angeles.

The improvements will include sidewalks and curbs, three-inch macadam roadways, with heavier streets for the main highways. Telephones, gas, water, electricity and every other improvement will be put in. The building restrictions run from $3500 up.

RESURFACING OF EAST BROADWAY IS STARTED

A gang of men employed by the Pacific Electric company arrived in Glendale early this morning and is now resurfacing the right-of-way of that company on East Broadway. It is expected that the crew will repair every section of the Pacific Electric roadway while it is in this city.

City Engineer Dupuy asks for information of work that should be done by this crew.

Engineer Dupuy has been informed by Engineer Johnson of the Pacific Electric company that the P. E. has no intention of extending its East Broadway line any farther east than it is at this time.

Mr. Johnson says the company does not intend to run the line farther east than the Sycamore Canyon road.

THURSDAY CLUB WANTS PARK ON SOUTH SIDE

Organization Goes on Record at the Public Forum

At a forum meeting of the Thursday Afternoon club held yesterday at the K. of P. hall, attended by twenty-five members and friends, a motion carried that the club endorse a park for the southern section of Glendale, the selection of the ground to be left to the park commission. The object of the meeting, which was opened by Mrs. Wm. Mabry, president, and later turned over to the chairman of the forum meetings, was to make suggestions for beautifying the city.

The following are some of the suggestions which were made: To lower the street car tracks the entire length of Brand boulevard and pave the street all the way.

Establishing of a recreation center.

Clean up vacant lots of weeds, etc.

Beautifying gardens.

Giving attention to parkways.

Cleaning sidewalks around the school property.

A uniform system of street lighting for the main boulevards.

Attractive waiting stations along the street car lines.

That excess salt and gravel be removed after completion of new street improvements.

A great deal of discussion followed the suggestion of a systematic collection of tin cans, rubbish, garbage, etc., as there was considerable difference of opinion as to the dates on which it should be collected.

It was announced that the civics committee of the chamber of commerce is making preliminary steps for a "clean-up week," the date for which is tentatively set for March 15. In that connection it was stated that an exchange station is being contemplated, whereby newcomers and those starting new homes may get clippings of plants and flower bulbs, and volunteers were asked to donate these.

A pleasant treat was afforded those attending the forum meeting when a group of delightful vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Helen E. MacMullin, chairman of the civics committee of the Tuesday Afternoon club, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Roberta Young. She sang "The Enchanted Glade" (Barker), "Under the Lanterns" (Sanderson), and "Friend of Mine" (Sanderson).

An invitation was read and accepted to attend the housewarming of the new Tuesday Afternoon club home on March 12. Announcement was made that a card party will be held on March 17 at the home of Mrs. Wilbur, 321 West Cypress street.

After the business session tea and cake were served and a social time enjoyed.

STREET WORK IS CONSIDERED BY CITY COUNCIL

The owners of property on Verdugo road from the present business district to Wabasso way requested the city council last night to change that street to a commercial district. It was laid over for one week.

Maps of tracts No. 6231 and 6178 were accepted.

The property owners along Cypress street between San Fernando road and Los Angeles street, asked that proceedings be started for the improvement of that street with 3-inch macadam, sidewalks and water pipe, this work to be assessed to the property. The city attorney and city engineer were instructed to start proceedings for this work.

Bids for cast iron pipe were opened and read and referred to the superintendent of plant and construction for checking and report.

The following ordinances were adopted:

An ordinance regulating plumbing.

An ordinance for the opening and widening of San Fernando road.

An ordinance changing the name of a portion of Chester street to Concord street and Spazier street to Spazier avenue.

An ordinance, establishing the grade on Piedmont and Granada.

A resolution ordering the work on Mountain street, Winchester and Fourth street was passed.

A resolution of intention to vacate a portion of Idlewood road was adopted.

As there were no protests in the vacating of an alley in tract No. 4585, the next step in this work was ordered.

As there were no protests against improvement of Magnolia avenue, the next step in this work was ordered taken.

This meeting will be the most important event in the history of the Glendale club.

MUSIC CLUB CONCERT IS BIG TRIUMPH YOUNG GIRLS DISSAPPEAR FROM HOME

Fine Artists Give Well-Made Program of Evening

CHANGE IN DATES Programs to Be Given on First Friday of Month Hereafter

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

The concert of Thursday night was another pearl added to the rosary of programs which members of the Glendale Music Club cherish in memory. It, like its predecessors, was calculated to make all the music lovers present congratulate themselves on the existence of such an organization and their membership in it.

Carl Cantvoort, the baritone soloist, is a big, upstanding young fellow, with an infectious confiding smile whom one would expect to have a fine voice and the expectation was not disappointed. Last night, although the singer had a cold, his outstanding number was "Ogier le Danois" (Holmes), which exactly suited his register and which also was an opportunity for the display of his fine dramatic abilities, which were also exhibited in "Danny Deever," substituted for his final program number, "Roadway" (Dunsmeere). He also made two other substitutions, probably in deference to the law of the club that the program shall include American numbers. In place of "Songs My Mother Taught Me" (Dvorak) he sang "Thy Beaming Eyes" (MacDowell) and for "Dance on Sommeil" (Faure), Cadman's "Memories," the announcement of this substitution being greeted by applause which showed by what a warm place that company has in the hearts of Glendadians.

Every group of songs called forth an ovation of applause to which Mr. Cantvoort responded with encore numbers which included the negro spiritual, "My Golden Crown," written by his brother, and "Duna." One of the most greatly enjoyed was "Night in the Desert," a true western nocturne by Ross.

Armon Lihoviski, the violinist of the evening, had been heard before by the club, which was the better prepared for his delightful and unusual contributions to the program. He is as devoted to the loved instruments as is the mother to the child her arms cradle, and its response to his conceived interpretations of the compositions chosen was most satisfying to the audience. Especially was it pleased with the strongly contrasting numbers, "Bird and Prophet" (Tartini-Kreisler) with its marchlike challenge to join its crusade whatever that crusadé Tarantelle. The "Introduction" and "Tarentelle" by Sarasate, was tumultuously applauded after every number, generally responding with encores.

The final note of perfection was the artistic work of William Tyroler, the piano accompanist, who, with exquisite technique and feeling, supported the two artists. It would have been a satisfaction to have heard him in a solo number.

After Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the organization, had announced that numerous requests had been received from members of church choirs and others unable to attend Thursday nights that the meeting might be changed, the club unanimously voted to give the concert the first Friday night of the month.

Another address of special interest was made by Harvey M. Toy, chairman of the State Highway Commission, who presented real facts concerning the serious conditions involving the California road building program. The convention went on record as favoring the limitation of truck loads to 23,000 pounds and imposing a 2c tax on gasoline to help finance the highway program.

ALL INSURANCE RECORDS BROKEN

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company broke all records in amount of business done in the year 1922, according to a report published today. The amount of new business placed on the books exceeded the phenomenal year of 1920 and was far in excess of what had been done in 1921. The officers of the company believe that this certainly reflects improved business conditions.

Particularly significant is the fact that industrial insurance, which is taken largely by wage earners and their families, had such a great volume. The total amount of industrial insurance placed during the year was over $775,000,000. The investment situation is also good. The income of the company increased by over thirty-eight and a half million dollars over that of 1921, reaching the total of $340,668,301. The assets of the company increased $144,267,300, and at the end of the year stood at $1,259,850,325. The mortality increased somewhat as compared with the previous year, and the total number of claims paid was 365,276. This was an average of one claim paid every 24 seconds of each business day during the year, including Sundays and holidays. The amount paid to policyholders averaged $803.81 a minute of each business day.

Along with this great increase on the business side, the welfare work done by the company, in behalf of the health of its industrial policyholders, kept pace. Metropolitan nurses made more than two million free visits to sick industrial policyholders, bringing the total number made since this service was inaugurated to over sixteen million. The company has distributed altogether two hundred and seventy-two mil-

The Divorce Evil—Henry Wilcox.

Capital and Labor—Fred Richardson.

URGES COLLEGES INSTEAD OF BONUS

J. T. Van Rensselaer Proposes Oxford-Cambridge System

James T. Van Rensselaer of 803 East Windsor road has been recently asked to take the place of Major General Peter C. Harris as national chairman of the National Memorial University association. This association was formed three years ago by Generals Peter Harris and Leonard Wood and other high officers in the army for the purpose of obtaining the necessary funds for the establishment of National Memorial Universities, as a tribute to the memory of the men who gave their lives to their country during the World War, preference to be given to the children of men and women who were in the service of the army, navy or marine corps at that time.

Seen at his home yesterday, Mr. Van Rensselaer said:

"For forty years I have been greatly interested in the advancement of education and, since the armistice, I have become convinced that the only possible solution of staggering world problems will be found in the future through increased production, directly traceable to an enormous expansion of higher education. By this, I mean that every dollar spent properly on education reproduces itself over and over again, and the larger the number of really educated people in the world, and the higher the degree of education, the greater will be the amount of wealth in existence. My views on the subject being well known to a number of prominent soldiers and civilians is probably the reason I have been asked to take General Harris' place during his indefinite absence in Europe.

"However, I positively decline to accept the responsibility of such a wonderful opportunity to help benefit the nation unless a tentative plan be arranged to afford a suitable alternative to that portion of the adjusted compensation plan of the American Legion which is generally referred to as the Soldiers' Bonus. I had four sons in the service during the war and I am opposed to the bonus as not going far enough. I want all who were concerned to receive some permanent and lasting benefit, and I can think of nothing more beneficial and enduring than to provide a complete education, subject to natural qualifications, for all children of ex-service men and women who served during the war.

"For several months I have been in consultation with educators and business men all over the country, and, as a result, I make the proposal that the American people, by the utilization of institutions already functioning, and by the addition of others, attempt to do, in twenty-five years, for the United States, what it took 1000 years for Oxford and Cambridge to do for England.

"My proposal, as given out, is as follows: That the federal government shall actually subsidize, religious denominations, fraternal and other organizations, and with individuals, and, wherever possible, with institutions already functioning during the next ten or more years, in establishing self-supporting universities on the Oxford-Cambridge system of a score or more colleges.

"Parenthetically it may be said, that at the University of the Philippines the Roman Catholics and the various denominations, maintain and control the dormitories. This plan has worked so admirably, and without friction, that it is fair to suppose it will readily adapt itself, through the Oxford-Cambridge system, to the American spirit.

"The colleges shall be self-governing, and students are to be afforded the opportunity to work as well as to study, thus making provision for the higher education of all children, qualified, of all men and women who served in the army, navy and marine corps in the late war.

"Each university, subject to a mutual agreement of all colleges concerned, shall also be self-governing, and it is understood that the sole concern of the government with the matter will be assumption of one-half of the liability for a

New Streets, Sewer, Sidewalks and Curb Ordered.

"No Parking" Signs Are Prohibited

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 2.—Putting out "No Parking" signs will be a misdemeanor in this city. On the theory that the streets and sidewalks are public property and the right to regulate parking on them belongs exclusively to the city, the commissioners instructed the city attorney to draw up an ordinance prohibiting the placing of such signs except by the municipal authorities.

Twelve Thousand Miles to Attend High School

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 2.—Twelve thousand miles to attend the Santa Monica high school is the record journey of Barbara and Clifford Bird, who recently arrived at San Pedro on the last lap of their long trip to be confronted by the fact that the South African quota of immigrants had been filled. Relatives in this city, however, were able to prevail on the authorities to permit their entrance into the country. The youngsters, still in their teens, came all the way alone by way of the Canary Islands, Liverpool, Larouche, the Bermudas, Nicaragua, Panama and San Pedro. They are now enrolled in local classes.

Santa Monica Band to Be Enlarged

[By Associated Press]

SANTA MONICA, March 2.—Accredited by officials of the thirteenth national orange show at San Bernardino and of the Pacific Electric railroad, the Santa Monica 75,000 additional visitors to the annual exposition this year, Santa Monica's municipal band, headline attraction of the show, is to be more than doubled if present plans are carried out.

In view of the fact that this musical organization, under the direction of Signor Alfredo Tommasino, of Signor Alfredo Tommasino, a magnet that brings thousands of tourists here, the city council this morning expressed its approval of an augmented band.

Briefly, the suggestion is to persuade 4,000,000 ex-service men and women representing every section and every division of the country, and acting from the most enlightened self-interest, to join in one great national effort to create a highly educated American people in two or more generations. For many men and women, who unselfishly served the country during the great war, fully believe that education is light and light is from God, and that movement has begun, which, if it develops according to promise, will grow into the most impassioned enterprise so far undertaken by man.

Mr. Van Rensselaer is a recent arrival in Glendale. He was educated at the De Vaux and Hobart colleges in New York state, at Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland, and at New College, Oxford. He is an old New York of the country, near all over the world. He says the two things that afford him the most interest at present are the terrible conditions in continental Europe, and the fact that Glendale has, he really believes, the finest climate found anywhere. This he is prepared to prove. He says the rapid growth of Glendale is only a natural corollary, and he expects soon to see people using periscopes in their homes so as to secure the sight of a few square feet of available land hereabouts.

DR. HARROWER REPORTS FROM BERLIN

Stops at Hotel Eden But Finds It Is Not Paradise

Dr. Harrower is in darkest Germany, according to a letter received from him by his laboratory staff in Glendale. Dr. Harrower writes from the Eden Hotel, although his description of Berlin does not confirm to the orthodox idea of where such a hotel should be located. He writes:

Berlin, Feb. 2, 1923.

"My dear folks: Here I am in God-forsaken Germany, and I have been here three days—long enough to get my bearings, remember some of the language and discover how glad I am that God did not happen to make me a German! You don't know how sorry I am for them; for right now in the midst of this Ruhr mess things are indeed in a bad way.

"All through expresses are cancelled on account of the Ruhr situation, and so I had to come from London via the Hook-of-Holland route. Holland is not so pretty just now, and, aside from the interminable canals—dozens of miles of them—and the inevitable windmills, it was not especially interesting.

"All went along smoothly till we got to Benheim on the German border. There we had to bundle out with our stuff—hand and registered baggage, into the customhouse. Passports were again studied, and since my German visa expires February 1, I anticipated the delightful pleasure of a harangue in German, but no such thing. I was shoved along in the crush, opened my suitcase, swore I had nothing had in my possession and, after declaring my money in possession, I was hurried on into the private cubby-hole to be searched. Of course I wasn't—but I was asked if I had this that or the other, and if I had a proper certificate, etc.

"Then I exchanged one of English paper pound notes ($4.6 approximately), and received about a pound of paper—almost literally. I received 100 thousand-mark notes and 100 five-hundred-mark notes and then 9,500 marks in 500's and 100's—the remaining 500 marks was considered as exchange. This made 159,000 for a pound note, or about 35,000 marks to the dollar. This was four days ago. Today I got 50,000 marks for a dollar bill!—worth $10,000 ten years ago.

"I ate my meals with a gentleman from New Jersey who was on his way to Sweden. We were astounded at the prices in the dining car, and, while compared with pre-war days, the figures are preposterous, when compared with what we get for our real money, the actual cost to us is absurd. My dinner cost 4370 marks, or about nine cents, and I had a fine meal.

"This money business is the one transcending thing that stands out above everything else in Germany today. Exchange is falling so rapidly and so far that nobody knows what to do. The evening papers—prices ranging from 70 to 100 marks apiece—are stuck up in certain windows so that the passer-by can save his money, for, while 100 marks is veritably nothing to us, to them it is a considerable sum. Wages actually are paid so slowly that this variation is far too slow to keep up with the changes in prices for they are changed every day. For instance, I had to get some passport photos taken in order to comply with the regulations. The price was 450 marks (one cent) for half a dozen. When I went to get them the next day the price was 750 marks. Of course, I had already paid for mine, for it is an invariable rule that everything must be paid in advance, including all the stuff which is bought for export.

"Yesterday afternoon I did some shopping: it is useless to do a lot of shopping even at these absurd prices for export of anything is 'strictly forbidden.' However, I bought a couple of pairs of Sollen (the German shoe store) slippers, price 5,000 marks apiece, or 9 cents; a couple of ties, one for 7500 and the other for 18,000 marks, total cost, say 55 cents. I saw all sorts of bargains in windows which if Pendroy were to advertise in Glendale, would literally cause a riot. Think of a perfectly decent looking dress shirt for 50 cents, or a safety razor for 6 1/2 cents, or a watch for $2.35—not an Ingersoll, either.

"The taxi rates are figured by multiplying the meter rate by 1200; it is amusing to see the drivers commence to figure, looking sort of blank and making their lips move while doing their multiplication stunt, and the trip, which may have lasted 20 to 30 minutes, costs 6,000 or 7,000 marks—nearly 15 cents!

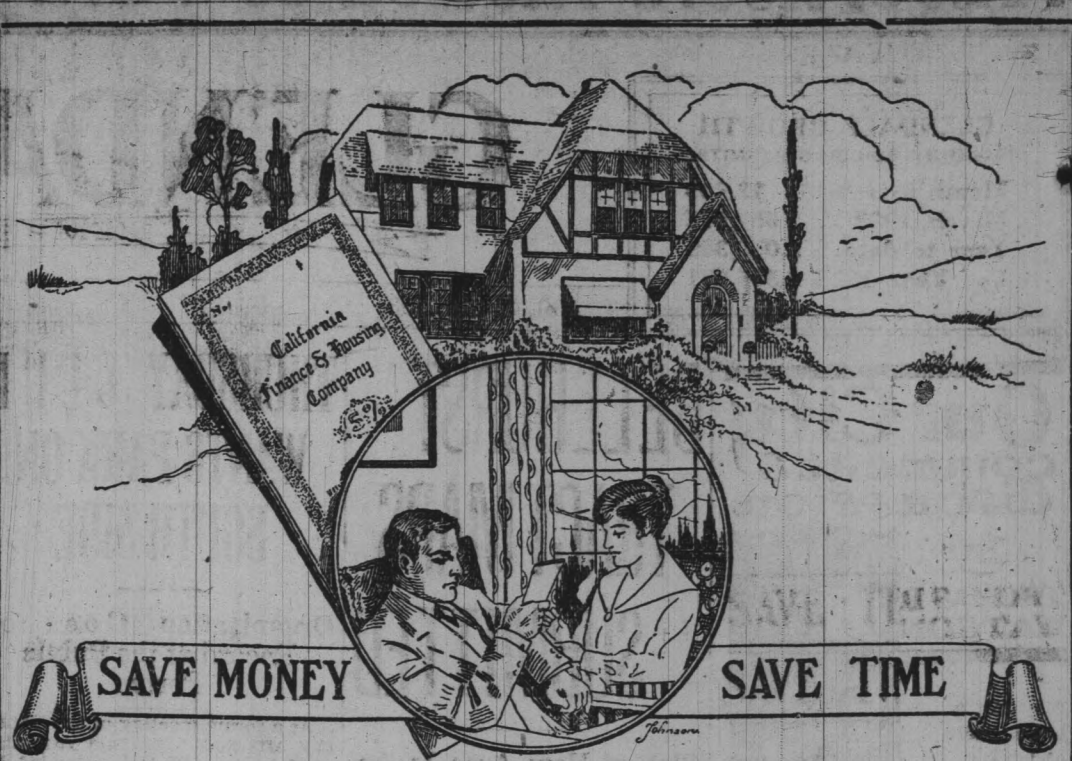

"The things my old acquaintances—for it is nearly nine years since I was there before—talk to me about are pitiful. Everybody has lost their money for their 'money' is so terribly depreciated. The situation as regards the French in the Ruhr is being used to arouse more of the very things that originally caused the war. These Germans, the ordinary folk, the doctors, the 'man on the street,' and the 'average man,' are decent human beings like we are trying to be, but they have a bad handicap.

"Best regards to you all. As ever,

"HENRY H. HARROWER."

'MY WILD IRISH ROSE' AT THE GLENDALE THEATER

A real Irish street, typical of the old sod, was erected at the Vitagraph studio lot in Hollywood for several of the scenes in "My Wild Irish Rose," based upon Dion Boucicault's famous play, "The Shaughraun." This production is being shown at the Glendale Theater and was directed by David Smith, who is famed for his ability to get atmosphere in productions. He has a veritable menagerie, the prize packages being an over-the-hill goat, an immense sow and a one-eyed gander, which Mr. Smith promptly named "Mr. Mulcahy," because of his high-toned manner of strutting through the set in a jaunty Irish style. Director Smith declared that no race but the Irish can be blamed if the set is not exactly typical of Erin's vogue.

SUGAR PRICES

WASHINGTON, March 2. (A. P.)—Investigation by the senate manufacturers committee, headed by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, of the recent advances in the price of sugar, was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa.

The committee would be directed "to investigate the manipulations of the sugar market and ascertain the cause of the rapid advance in the price of sugar notwithstanding the fact that the secretary of commerce announces that there is no world's shortage of the sugar supply."

The investigation would proceed during the recess of congress this summer.

PEARSON ASSEMBLY IS WELL ATTENDED

All the tickets issued for the art lecture by Ralph Pearson at the high school Wednesday were used, and many more could have been sold had conditions been such that the demonstration which Mr. Pearson gave of the process of making and printing etchings could have been seen by those distant from the stage. Some of his own famous work was used to demonstrate his points. He contrasted the early art along this line with the modern movement and the feeling of the artist for his work in one day. He likewise contrasted the tameness of drawing things literally as they are and the finer work of portraying them with the artist's vision of how they might look. So interested was his audience that it crowded around him to ask questions at the close of the talk and had literally to be pushed away. He generously left some of the examples of his work which will be on exhibition in room 133 the balance of the week.

The Superior Auto Laundry employs experts in their line and guarantee all work. In addition to washing and polishing their Simons and wax cars, and clean the motor.

Truths in Epigram

If you hate your enemies, you will contract such a vicious habit of mind, as by degrees will break out upon those who are your friends, or those who are indifferent to you.—La Bruyere.

Earnestness is the best gift of mental power.—Bulwer Lytton.

'Tis not the dying for a faith that is so hard—'tis the living up to it that is so difficult.—Thackeray.

COMMUNITY SINGING

The community that does not sing is missing much. Perhaps there are other cities than Alhambra that have taken hold of this idea. If there are not, there should be. Alhambra is setting them a fine example, for it has regularly what is termed a "Community Sing." An excellent leader is provided. The attendance is large, the enthusiasm boundless, and the music of high order.

There is nothing else that so brings people to a common plane as music. This is particularly true of music in which they participate. All the emotions aroused by melody are of the ennobling sort. When people are singing together they have found a happy mode of crystallizing and expressing the community spirit. That is what Alhambra is doing. Progressing rapidly in an industrial sense, it does not mean that development along cultural lines shall be neglected. So it sings, artistically, heartily; and thus the collective soul seems to become one great soul; a potent force, all for good.

The programs are not elaborate. Although musicians of recognized standing take part, the idea is to interest the ordinary citizen, the man who does not understand grand opera, but who loves a tune that he can catch and tame; can whistle the next day if he feels like it. The songs are held Sundays, and naturally have a religious savor. There will be a few numbers of the good old hymns that everybody knows. There will be the beautiful ballads that Tom Moore gave to the world. Popular songs of this generation and back to the days of the civil war. "Annie Laurie," "Nellie Gray," "Silver Threads Among the Gold." There will be patriotic songs. At Alhambra they can give the "Star-Spangled Banner" in the manner it should be given. That's an achievement.

Delightful as the music is, the most charming feature of such occasions is the community spirit that it is meant to foster and does foster. People do not sing out of one book and remain strangers. Everybody feels as though belonging to one family, and inspired to make the life of the family a thing of beauty and interest and wholesome growth.

THE SOUTH AWAKENS

To see the state of Mississippi advertising its merits and industrial charms is surprising. It has been content to sleep, and to let its fortunes drift on, largely without direction, and certainly without supplying energy to the movement. It has vast resources, a pleasing climate, much physical beauty. Now it has started a campaign to call attention to these things. Perhaps it has been inspired by the example of California.

The awakening of Mississippi is significant. It indicates a change that cannot but have good results. An influx of people, the breaking down of social prejudice, would benefit that commonwealth, and in so doing benefit the country at large. The south has been lax in many things essential to its own well-being. It has neglected education. It has permitted its schools to fall far below the average. There has been a tendency to tolerate child labor. When the doors have been opened wide, and a general invitation extended to the public, the settled characteristics will change. It is unlikely even that the rejuvenated south would be dominated by a single political sentiment. It would have its mental faculties quickened, and thus cease to be, while part of the republic, a distinct and purposely isolated part.

California has found that advertising pays, has been advertising regularly, and intends to continue. It is now growing so fast that nothing could stop it. Its location and natural attributes make it to be without a rival. It wishes success to the people of Mississippi in their undertaking.

VALUE OF A CONFESSION

A man charged with a serious crime, and believed to have committed it, finally is arrested. He is restrained, of course, but beyond this is not subjected to duress. The officers who have him in charge treat him with courtesy. He talks to them freely. To one of them he tells, on his own initiative, the complete story of the crime, confessing freely that it was perpetrated by himself and no other. When he began to speak the officer had told him that he was under an obligation to talk; that there was abundant proof of his guilt; but the prisoner insisted on talking, making what is known as a "clean breast" of it.

Later this prisoner procures a lawyer, and under instructions pleads not guilty. The confession made voluntarily indicates that the plea is a falsehood, and that the prosecution sought to have established. Nevertheless the recital of the confession is barred out. The trial goes ahead with all the formality that would have marked the effort to ascertain the truth, and just as though the truth were not known.

When a prisoner says to his captor "I am the murderer" and then proceeds to give the details, the captor is not permitted to take the stand and relate under oath the statement of the prisoner. For him to do this would endanger the welfare of the accused; might prejudice the jury, and result in the accomplishment of justice.

Too often the trial for a grave offense is not a trial of the case on its merits, but a mere matching of legal tricks.

There is an effort being made by the supreme court of this state to catch up with its work. More work is thrust upon it than should be. Many a case lost in the lower courts goes to the highest tribunal for no other reason than that the loser has the money to hire a lawyer to hunt up a technicality absolutely devoid of merit, but capable of causing delay.

AN APPROVED LOOPHOLE

Recently a young woman came from Germany to marry an American who as a soldier in the army of German occupation had wooed her and won her promise. It seems that she is a young woman of culture and beauty, altogether an admirable type. But the immigration laws said she could not land unless married. Local ordinances required that for the issuing of a license, both the prospective bride and bridegroom must be present. Here seemed to be a complete obstacle to the union. There really was not the slightest objection to the marriage; only the laws had been so contrived as to prevent it. In this emergency a ship captain sent a message from sea that he would marry the two outside the three-mile limit. Then an official awoke to the fact that the law was being made to look rather foolish. So he poked a hole in the law, and through this, the young woman came in, and the next day was married, as she had a right to be.

The immigration law is not a remarkably intelligent scheme anyhow. It means well, but it imposes many hardships upon the worthy, and it often permits the worthless to slip in. Happily there are administrators of the law who have human traits that have not been smothered under swathings of red tape. To have sent this passenger back would have been a gross imposition, creating unhappiness, and doing no good to anybody. The discreet creation of a loophole, far from being invariably a wrong, may be proper response to a nice sense of duty.

Politics Stops at Water's Edge

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It was William C. Redfield, former secretary of commerce, who coined the bright phrase, "Politics must stop at the water's edge."

Dr. Frank Crane

Of course it does not. There is where it really ought to begin. For the most important politics in the world consists in our dealings with other nations.

The statement, however, is true in the sense Mr. Redfield meant it; that is, partisan politics should stop at the water's edge. That means that we should not let our family quarrels interfere with our treatment of the Joneses.

We may have our internal differences, and always will have. No mortal question could be brought up in the senate of the United States and no proposition, not even a flag-waving, vote-hungry patriot would rise upon his hind legs and denounce it as a scheme of Wall Street, or an effort to promote bolshevism.

This we must expect. Cantankerousness springs eternal in the politician's breast. But when it comes to our dealings with neighbor nations the handling of all affairs should be put in charge of somebody who is not partisan, but who represents the controlling and majority sentiment in the United States.

As a rule, it is much better to have foreign affairs handled by the executive, and according to our form of government, this is done.

But there are some questions that must be submitted to the senate and there we usually get into trouble, because partisanship has its chance to stop over and mess up our foreign relations in order to curry favor of the people of Podunk county back home.

We have a duty to ourselves, and of course that duty is first-of-all duty, just as self-defense is the first law of nature. But the individual who has no higher law than self-protection is a barbarian.

Civilized people recognize that they have duties to other people, to their families and to their neighbors, and even to strangers.

So civilized nations ought to recognize the fact that it is impossible to confine a national conscience to internal affairs exclusively. We have relations with other nations, and the intelligent managing of these relations may mean our prosperity and peace or it may mean our great injury.

In fact, most of the dictates of conscience have to do with the other fellow and not with one's self.

Mr. Redfield declares that he believes "it is high time that a united America saw at once the opportunity and duty to take a definite stand and help solve the problems that agitate all mankind at the present time."

America is strong, and a strong man's responsibilities are vastly greater than a weak man's. The question of international relationship is not a matter of currying favor with one nation or taking pity upon another. It is simply a question of playing the man, doing our duty, and bearing our share of the world's burden.

Francis Winston, New York City: "As a constant reader of your paper I am venturing to ask these questions: Is 'Everybody' take care of his own hat' correct? Is it an imperative sentence? Could everybody be separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma?"

Answer: The sentence, which is imperative, is correct, and a comma should not be placed after everybody.

"Better" and "Best"

T. John Hartigan, Chicago, Ill.: You have probably already read an article "The Right Word" published recently on the use of best and better. While some authorities excuse and even under certain conditions, approve of the use of best when one is comparing two things, "The Right Word" endorsed better, explaining that best should be used when more than two objects are compared. A reader in Cleveland also wrote "The Right Word" on this subject. His communication is acknowledged.

Mend, Darn, or Repair?

J. P. V., New York City: "In view of the fact that the choice of words is such an important factor in english conversation, and in the general use of any language for that matter, discussions often arise as to whether such or such a word is right or not. Would not the verb either to mend or to darn—speaking about socks, for instance—be more proper to use than to repair? I think that to repair does not apply to socks as well as to either of the verbs mentioned. Am I right?"

Answer: To repair would be a proper expression to use, but to mend or to darn is probably more often heard. J. P. V. should have used a capital in spelling English.

Sure, there could not be greater blessing than this.

And with it the blessing of hearing.

Sweet sounds mingled in rare harmonies.

The song of birds, the lilting echo of the wind in the tree tops, the wash and surge of the seas.

The voices of mothers and wives and sweet-hearts in murmured words of gladness and happiness.

The blessing of hearing.

Second only perhaps to seeing.

The blessing of sunshine and fresh air and the fragrance of meadows in the spring.

Trees springing to life with bud and blossom.

Hedges rioting with the splash and color of flowers.

Songs of the Poets

In August—By Rabette Deutsch in The Bookman

Heat urges secret odors from the grass.

Blunting the edge of silence, crickets shrill.

Wings veer: inane needles of light, and pass.

Laced pools: the warm wood-shadows ebb and fill.

The wind is casual, loitering to crush

The sun upon his palate, and to draw

Pungence from pine, frank fragrances from brush,

Sucked up through thin grey boughs as through a straw.

Moss-green, fern-green and leaf and meadow-green

Are broken by the bare, bone-colored roads,

Less moved by stirring air than by unseen

Soft-footed ants and meditative toads.

Summer is passing, taking what she brings:

Green scents and sounds, and quick ephemeral wings.

THERE WAS A MAIDEN LADY

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma was the maiden lady of Congress—but her constituents retired her. Perhaps they thought her cafeteria patrons were lonely for her. I don't know, not being one of them.

But I am a woman and I'm tired of hearing this maiden lady quoted as an authority on my sex and its place in the scheme of things.

It has been but a few weeks since this spinster delivered herself of an opinion to the effect that no woman in this country was fitted to be governor of any state or a member of the President's cabinet.

She might with truth have made her sweeping declaration include the majority of men, for it is notoriously true that the average voter cares not a penny whether or not the members of congress, the governors or the cabinet are want the women back in the homes.

Employers of child labor are equally zealous for the return of the mothers to the fire-side. They find too many laws threatening their profits. The women have also come out of the homes to see that the children are returned to them.

However—what I want to know is, how did Miss Robertson get such an exalted idea of her own ability to determine the place of her sex in the world? Also, why does she not practice her doctrines in the privacy of her Oklahoma home?

Miss Robertson has never been the friend of women, nor has she ever helped them along. She rode to congress on a wave of progress that received its impulse from the labors of those whom she scorns, and whom it is impossible for her to understand.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

INFALLIBLE ANDERSON

[New York Times]

The board of directors of the Anti-Saloon league of New York has given a "blanket endorsement" to its superintendent, Mr. Anderson. In a resolution, worthy of if not dictated by him, the directors say:

"We unhesitatingly certify to the churches to whom (which) this organization owes its existence that the critical hour of prohibition in the state of New York has been forced into the immediate present, and the time has come when the churches must understand that temperance reform and law enforcement now rest distinctly upon them. We do not forget that 'when the enemy cometh like a flood the Lord shall lift up a banner.' The board takes the position that there must be no compromise at any point or in any manner with any of the forces that have been opposed or are now opposed to prohibition in the state of New York. We will not compromise with the forces of evil under any circumstances."

Whereupon they give an absolute vote of confidence to Mr. Anderson and what he has any confidence against the world, the flesh and the devil, which we believe are leagued against us in this contest." It would be wasting time to point out to these ingenious gentlemen that temperance is a virtue that is exercised by a prohibitionist or even a total abstainer. Their confidence in Mr. Anderson and what he has done in the premises, all of which we believe has been fully reported to us, is honorable to their sense of loyalty, even if not entirely satisfactory to those who doubt if Mr. Anderson is full of the sincere milk of prohibition when he "splits commissions" and, from the austere heights of infallible righteousness doesn't condescend to explain the particular application of certain sums.

The course of these directors is natural. The ways of immutable virtue may be devious.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

The batch of confidence men in the Los Angeles county jail seem to have lost much of their confidence.

According to history, the early presidential boom fizzles. But Ford says that history is bunk.

Russia's threat to go to the aid of Turkey ought to make the Turks very cautious.

The senate's determination to scrap all government-owned boats suggests that in private life some of the statesmen are junk dealers.

Perhaps the fact that individual movie salaries run into thousands of dollars a week also tends to ruffle the temper of the literary fellows.

Some of the money seized in Germany by the French had been intended for the British. Thus the rift in the lute widens.

A country naturally takes pride in its ruins as evidencing that it used to amount to something.

An editor is accustomed to being blown up, but the use of an infernal machine for the purpose really is quite unprofessional.

Each one of a number of thriving cities is wont to mention Los Angeles as its fastest growing suburb.

To the pure all things are pure. Still, there are vicious minds to which it may occur that collections may be a little slow if the absolute infallibility of Mr. Anderson is to be the chief dogma of the Anti-Saloon league.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Millions of Americans live in zoned cities. This means that by some approved plan, each city has been divided into a number of areas in which only structures of a particular kind may be erected. By this uniformity is produced, symmetry preserved, and beauty accentuated.

No man desires to build a dwelling and have a foundry or soap factory put up on the adjoining lot. If he erects an expensive house for himself on an expensive tract, he wants to be assured that a shack shall not be on one side of him, and a cheap boarding house on the other.

Almost every town is so located as to afford space for an industrial section without trespass on the residential section; a section for commercial structures, another for single houses and still another for duplex. Unless there is some systemized method of growth, however, there is likely to be a hodgepodge. This causes loss of values and lowers desirability.

The city that plans wisely its future development bears in mind the necessity for wide streets and ample park room. Thus when it has expanded, it has no occasion for widening streets at great cost, or buying ground for parks, and paying a fancy price.

The city that adopts the zone idea early is saving itself much trouble, expediting growth, and promoting beauty.

It is said the President may tour the country in support of his plan to have the United States participate in the world court.

There is not much in presidential tours to encourage this course. The matter is in the hands of the senators and not of the people, and in just whose hands the senators are is not quite clear.

If the presidential appeal to the good sense and patriotism of the senators fails to move them, perhaps it would be better that he remain at home and rest.

Charges against Victor Berger have been dismissed. These charges were that he had interfered with army recruiting. There seemed enough evidence to support the charge at one time, for he was convicted and sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary.

Well, the man is free now, and perhaps with the exception of the distinguished La Follette, is first in the hearts of his (Milwaukee) countrymen. Kicked out of congress twice, he is sent a third time with their blessing.

Warnings against the operations of the smoother type of thieves perhaps could not be issued too often. The strangers who approach with information as to how to win thousands on a certain horse race are nothing but thieves too timid to blow a safe, and who find burglary too strenuous.

The course of the senate filibusters in virtually condemning all government-owned ships to the scrap heap, and deciding that the United States shall have no merchant marine, is simply incomprehensible to the ordinary citizen.

That the senators do not know better cannot be believed; since this would rate them as functioning in the depths of stupidity. But there is some element inspiring them, and determined to make the government lose, instead of a large part of the money it had put into ship building, virtually all of it.

Who wants the ships for a song? Is the dignified senate the instrumentality of the junkman?

Although the Beverly Hills editor who was sent an explosive package by mail, had received threats signed "K. K. K." that is no sign that the outrage was committed by that body. It may have been the tribute of another set of malefactors to the organization mentioned. The implication was that had the K. K. K. desired to intimidate or mutilate or even to kill an editor, such would have been its way of going about it.

A low and degenerate and cowardly trick was that of assault in this stealthy fashion.

Ford headquarters have been opened in Chicago. There is an element determined to make Ford President of the United States. No particular reason has been given for it yet, and there is some curiosity on the subject.

Despite the effort to boom the man, the opinion that his ideal station is at the head of the lizzie foundry persists. However, the early boom catches the frost.

Perhaps the French made a tactical error in seizing German money, since part of the sum taken had been intended for the British. People who expect money at a given time, and fail to get it, are likely to grow peevish by their British or whatever.

Diplomatic England has professed to be greatly disturbed by the conduct of the French anyhow. If this in the beginning, was pretense, the danger that it may become real, is evident.

Russia repeats its threat to go to the rescue of Turkey. This permits repetition of the guess that the offer is a bluff. What Russia should bend its efforts to rescue is Russia.

The Turks probably could win nothing by the presence of the Russians save a renewed experience with the cootie, and the infection of typhus. The Russians would be pretty hungry even by the time they had reached Poland, and fairly ravenous before they could get to Turkish soil. Then, on top of present troubles, the Turks would have the problem of feeding them.

There is an absence of joyous thrills at the appointment of Senator New to be postmaster general. He may be a good executive at that. The point is that sympathy for political lame ducks is not a wide or violent emotion.

Doubtless there have been instances in which a man has been entitled to the rest imposed upon him by his constituents, but no retired office holder ever was known to believe it.

Addicts are getting so that they give "dope parties." That is, the guests are treated to their favorite poison instead of ice cream, or something like that.

The trouble is that the police come in despite the fact of not having been invited.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN DILGRIM

This may start off like the good old story of the elephant who was fed a chew of tobacco when Dred Scott still held a place on the first pages, and batted the head off the man who did it during the first Battle of the Marne. Maybe it is like that story. In which case there were a lot of us who played the elephant.

"Grape fruit, fifty cents a portion," was one line on the menu of the new hotel in our town.

Grape fruit was more or less unfamiliar to most of us in those days. Nowadays you can tell an American anywhere by the grape fruit juice spots on his necktie. As time went on grape fruit became a commodity in the market place. One could buy a large one for fifteen cents or get two for a quarter. But on the menu of what was once the new hotel the line still held:

Somewhat that line concentrated attention on our wrongs. Our wives buy a peck of ready-cooked breakfast food for fifteen cents and a half pint of excellent cream for little more. But at what used to be the new hotel a small saucer with bluish cream cost forty cents. Those who eat there had to pay the price. Most of us had to eat there, because strangers kept coming to town with letters of introduction. But we resented it.

The hotel manager explained that his overhead was enormous. That made no difference at all to us. We kept as much money away from the hotel as we could. We took in strangers—or not nearly as strangers—rather than permit them to pay two prices to sleep in a sad-colored room on a bed that sagged. So the hotel went into the hands of a receiver.

A woman in New York began business with a few dollars and an idea. The idea was that people would eat at her tea room if she gave them really first rate food at a reasonable price. She made a fortune.

The money may not come in so fast where the fair play and good service is the rule. But more of it comes in the long run.

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE BIRTHDAY PLAN

Members Discuss Public Questions at Interesting Meeting

At the regular meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle held yesterday at the library with Mrs. A. A. Barton, president in charge, plans were made for the next meeting, which will be the seventh birthday anniversary of the organization. Mrs. Charles H. Toll, who founded the Circle, will be present and each member will be allowed to bring a guest. An interesting program is being arranged. The school board election, registration, precincts and polling places were among the topics discussed at the morning session. Mrs. H. V. Henry gave a review of an article from the March "American" magazine, by Dr. Frank Crane on "Ten Things Which Keep Us Apart." After luncheon there was the roll call, to which members responded with quotations. Mrs. Henry continued reading from the book "Everyday Problems in Child Training" (M. V. O'Shea) taking up the chapters on The Home and The Community. Conditions in the Country. Rights of Children in the City and Certificates for Home Makers. This was followed by considerable discussion, after which the meeting adjourned.

Toledo Visitors Appreciate Glendale

Dr. James A. Belyea, Sr., president of the Toledo Sanitarium Company; Mrs. Belyea, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Funke and grand-daughter, Doris Funke, are guests of Dr. James A. Belyea, Jr., of 920 South Central avenue. Mr. Funke, who has been conducting a haberdashery business in Toledo, is considering starting such a business here. Dr. Belyea, Sr., has also caught the California fever and is considering selling out his sanitarium interests in Toledo and joining his son here. The visitors are all impressed by the contrast of sunshine and flowers with the cold and snow they left in Ohio.

CITY TEACHERS HEAR EXPLANATION OF STATE BUDGET

A very interesting assembly, attended by teachers of the elementary and high schools of this city, and the teachers of Eagle Rock, to the number of 250, was held in the high school auditorium Wednesday afternoon to hear an exposition of the school budget prepared by Governor Richardson, which is now before the state legislature. Assemblyman Frank Weller was to have been present, but was unable to get here and F. L. Thurston, executive secretary of the California Teachers' association, Southern branch, was the only speaker. He outlined the effect of the proposed budget upon the school system of the state from the viewpoint of public school teachers. As it was an unorganized assembly, no action was taken.

It is the date of the mammoth annual picnic reunion when from all sections they will rally in Sweetmore Grove park, Los Angeles to meet the old home friends once more.

WILLARD PRESENTS HIS TOLEDO ALIBI

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Jess Willard has allowed it to be intimated at times that the transfer of the heavyweight crown from his towering dome to the head of Jack Dempsey wasn't exactly according to the rules.

Not that Jess has the reputation of wandering in his speech, but because every fallen heavyweight champion wants it believed that he wasn't beaten fairly, Willard's tales were discounted.

He never explained exactly what he meant when he inferred that things at Toledo weren't as they should be. Like a good showman, he allowed the boys to do their own guessing and they all had their pet ideas, from cement in the gloves to knockout drops in the tea.

Willard recently decided to do a little explaining and it disappointed all who expected a sensation. Jess said he meant that the bout was all jumbled up, that the referee and the time keepers didn't know their business, that he had

That's what he meant by "flukey."

Mr. Ty Cobb will present for the approval of the American League fans next season, the greatest aggregation of swatters in captivity. Glance over this list—Cobb, 399; Blue, 300; Rigney, 300; Veach, 327; Pratt, 302; Hellman, 356; Haney, 352; Woodall, 344; Bassler, 323; Fothergill, 322.

If those Tigers get a little pitching! Mrs. Mallory may be missing when the fair American shock troops are mustered at Wimbledon next summer, but the cause of the invaders will not be hopeless as long as Miss Leslie Bancroft, Miss Edith Sigourney, Miss Martha Bayard, Miss Katharine Gardner and Miss Florence Ballin are there to take up the racquets.

At a regimental dinner a popular brigadier boasted that he never forgot the name or the face of any one who had served under him.

After the coffee had been round and conversation was more or less "easy," as soldiers say, a youth approached the brigadier.

"You don't remember me, sir?"

"Why, of course I do, my boy: I remember you quite well in the old brigade. Tell me, how is young Barton getting on? Do you ever see anything of him now?"

"Oh, yes, sir," replied the ex-officer. "I see him pretty often. I am Barton."

NEW BOOKS IN THE GLENDALE BRANCH LIBRARY

By CHARLES H. CUSHING

The library received a short time ago a little book entitled "Love Is the Law," by one who signs herself, "The Unknown."

It is such a simple and impressive statement of the fundamental truth of all religion, shorn of creed and sect, that it ought to find a place in every home. The beauty of Christ's teaching is here shown in all its wonderful simplicity.

A copy of the book will be sent free to any one upon application to the publisher in Davenport, Ia.

"Red Dusk and the Morrow," by Sir Paul Dukes, who was employed as chief of the British secret intelligence service in Soviet Russia, is a wonderfully interesting narrative of the real conditions existing in Russia. It shows that the present Bolshevik regime is not a government by the people of the country at all, but a small party exercising control by a despotism even more cruel than that of the czar.

"Argonauts of the Western Pacific," by Malinowski, is a scientific account of the native enterprise and adventure in the archipelago of Melanesian New Guinea. It is a more scientific treatise than the popular South Sea Island books of travel.

"A Short History of the World," by H. G. Wells, will be welcomed by those busy people who want to get a general survey of the world's progress and have not the time to read his longer work, "An Outline of History."

Other books in the department of history are: "Division and Reunion," by Woodrow Wilson, "The Economic History of the United States," by Bogart, and the volumes of the American Statesman series dealing with the following men: Benton, Webster, Chase, Jackson, Seward, VanBuren and Calhoun.

"Black Oxen," by Gertrude Atherton, deals with a theme probably new in the field of fiction, that is the rejuvenation of a woman of nearly sixty years of age by submitting to a scientific treatment by a famous physician of Vienna. The story is a very subtle psychological study of a woman's life.

Some other books of new fiction are: "Jezabel," and "Elementary Jane," by Richard Pryce, "The Battle of the Strong," by Gilbert Parker and "From a Bench in Our Square," by Adams.

Some standard works of fiction just put on the shelves include a very fine edition in limp leather of the works of Maupassant, that master of the short story; "The Return of the Native," and "The Mayor of Casterbridge," by Thomas Hardy, and "Barchester Towers," by Anthony Trollope.

VERDUGO HILLS BOY SCOUTS HAS WAITING LIST

The year for the Verdugo Hills district Boy Scouts of America since March, 1922, finds about 280 boys enrolled and many on the waiting list. It also finds the fathers of the city taking a more lively and practical interest in the work than they have ever taken before. The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs are definitely pledged to promote the movement. A new troop, No. 4, has been organized, which will be under the fostering care of the Glendale Post, American Legion, and Troop No. 1, the oldest in California, has been adopted by the Knights of Pythias.

At the business session of the executive board of the council, which was held January 12, following the annual banquet, A. R. Eastman was unanimously elected president and a budget of $10,000 for 1923 and $12,500 for 1924 was adopted. Dr. E. H. Parker was made chairman of the campaign for funds which was carried on for a week following the banquet and $5,000 was raised to apply on the budget. February 7, 1923, Mayor Robinson issued a proclamation recommending the observance of the week of February 8 to 14 as Boy Scout Week.

Twenty million people mutually own the biggest life insurance company in the world. It is The Metropolitan.

One person in every six in the United States and Canada is a holder of a Metropolitan policy—one of the safest forms of investment known to man.

Metropolitan policyholders live longer than other people because The Metropolitan takes care of its policyholders.

At the same time The Metropolitan is working in cooperation with private, public, civic, state and national organizations to improve the health and living conditions of every man, woman and child in this Country and Canada.

Why Metropolitan Policyholders Live Longer—

Metropolitan has distributed 272,000,000 booklets and pamphlets dealing with health and longer life.

Metropolitan nurses have made more than 16,000,000 free visits to its Industrial (i.e., weekly premium) Policyholders.

Metropolitan extends free periodic medical examinations to holders of Ordinary (i.e., other than industrial) policies.

Metropolitan, working with National, State and Local Health Agencies, is waging a war on Tuberculosis and other preventable diseases.

Life expectancy among Metropolitan Industrial Policyholders has been extended 8 1/4 years since 1911.

Why Metropolitan Policyholders Live Better—

The Metropolitan Agent is a friend to the families he visits and helps them in case of sickness.

17,000 Agents visit the homes of 17,000,000 Industrial Policyholders weekly—telling them of the value of sanitation, fresh air and sunshine.

Among the useful booklets distributed by the Agents are those telling how to buy food, how to care for food, how to cook food, how to provide wholesome, nourishing food for the least money.

A Company is Great only as it Serves.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

I do not know that any business man of Glendale read these weekly offerings of mine, but I hope that many of them do, for I feel sure I can tell them something that will aid them. When I entered the newspaper business, forty years ago, I had everything to learn, for I had never been in a newspaper office but once or twice and then only to get or take proofs for my father. So I had it all to learn from the ground up. I began soon to make a study of advertising, and I have kept up this study for forty years, from both angles, that of the newspaper man and also the business man. Soon after my entrance into newspaper publishing I began to be dissatisfied with the advertising columns of my paper, for the merchants seldom changed their ads, and when they did it was only to read a little differently whenever you want to. I have known of an ad to run without change for six months, not in my own paper, for I would not allow it, but in the columns of a competitor, and have actually in his columns seen the announcement in September that "new spring goods are arriving daily," which ad had run without change since the preceding March. Finally a man came to the little city (it had less than 2000 population) who held that advertising was not simply "to keep my name before the public," which was the attitude of nearly all the other merchants, but that it was for the purpose of keeping prospective buyers constantly informed on arrivals of new goods and prices of same. He had new copy for every issue and it "said something." I had consistently refused, from the first, to admit ads to the first page, but he kept pestering me to allow his to go there. Finally, after many refusals and in the hope of getting rid of his importunities, I told him he could have a first-page space for 25 per cent above the regular rates. He fairly snapped at the offer and of course I could not back down. He built up the largest business in the county by his persistent advertising in the two papers and by always "saying something." And he gradually taught other merchants, particularly in his own line, how to advertise. In my long study of advertising, both in weeklies and dailies and by other methods I have come to these conclusions: More money is spent for unprofitable than profitable advertising; ads to be effective must call particular attention to something—price, a new style, a certain adaptiveness or some other property; ads in mediums that have free distribution count for little, as a hand bill, a theater, church or other program and other thrown-about matter, do not attract and are not read; billboard advertising counts for little except for specific objects, such as circuses, movie shows and the like. But the most amazing discovery to me was that shrewd business men who could never be induced to pay double for an article of merchandise were easily duped when paying for advertising. You couldn't sell such a man a ten cent can of milk for twenty cents, but an ad solicitor of ordinary intelligence could easily sell him a ten-dollar advertising space for twenty dollars. The only purpose of an ad is to attract trade. It is the hope of the advertiser that every reader of his ad will become a customer. Of course this hope is seldom realized, but coming to the root of the matter, that is the design of every ad. The more people who read the ad, the more customers he secured. Therefore, the sole limit to the possibilities of an ad is the number of people who see it. Obviously, then, if 10,000 people see an ad, or have a chance to see it, the possibilities are just twice as great as if only 5000 see it. And there is just where so many otherwise shrewd business men display a surprising lack of business acumen. They do not seem to realize that a newspaper of 10,000 circulation has just twice as many readers as one of 5000, therefore twice as many chances for the ad to be seen and read; there are twice as many possible customers to be secured from it; therefore it is twice as valuable. In other words, to use a slogan common to this paper, "When you buy advertising you buy circulation." Think carefully now, isn't that type? Circulation means readers. Readers mean knowledge of the ads in the paper, and therefore potential buyers of the merchandise advertised. Yet many a merchant feels aggrieved that a paper with 10,000 circulation asks more per inch for advertising space than a competitor with only 5000; or that one with approximately 6000 subscribers insists that his columns are worth more than a competitor with only 3500. Is such an attitude reasonable, any more than asking twenty cents for a ten-cent can of milk? Of course if there was only one store in reach and the proprietor insisted he must have twenty cents a can, you'd have to pay it. And if there was only one paper in a city you'd have to pay any price demanded for your advertising. But when there is a chance for a choice, why should any business man expect to reach 6000 families—prospective customers—for the same outlay of money required to reach 3000 or 3500? Is it good business sense to expect such a thing? Yet a business man will plume himself on securing a given space in a publication with 3500 circulation for four-fifths the sum it would have cost him in one of 6000 circulation. That is the probability of customers to be secured, but gladly pays $36 for 3500 probabilities. Mighty poor business sense, you say. Yet how common this is. Most business men in cities under 50,000 population look upon advertising expense as a necessary evil—a tribute to be paid, instead of a lever by which great increase of business may be secured. No man should spend money in advertising who does not expect that advertising to bring him increased trade, and he should expect to pay for it in exact proportion to the probabilities offered, which are represented by readers.

When you and I were boys, old timers, the farmer was a very pessimistic individual. He generally went about in rags, his wife and children were poorly dressed and he had a mighty hard time to make ends meet. I am speaking of the average farmer, remember. Of course there were a few in every community with large acreages who were so well fixed that they could hold their grain for a good market, but these were few and far between. In those days the farmer depended solely on the sale of his grain for a living, and his crop meant very strained circumstances, while a complete failure meant ruin. Always in the early spring, ragged farmers would drop in, dozens of them, to the grocery stores and recite the invariable formula, "I want to get a few things till I make my crop." Apparently none of them was fore-handed enough to be able to pay the cash for even the necessities of life. At that time stock raising was distinct from farming, beef-cattle and sheep coming from the wide ranges of the west and south-west, while hogs were raised in great droves where they could be pastured in oak and beech groves, for acorns and beech nuts made the finest kind of "mast" for fattening them. But gradually the immense cattle ranges became more and more restricted, and the hog farms likewise. Then it was that the farmer awoke to a great opportunity. He found that by feeding his corn to cattle and hogs he could get double and treble the market price for it, and his horses thrived on oats rations. With this relief from former stringency he could hold his wheat for favorable markets and not be at the mercy of the big dealers. It was a revelation to the farmer that his financial condition rapidly improved. I well remember the year 1896, right in the midst of one of the worst "hard times" the country ever knew, when oats sold for from eight cents to fifteen cents a bushel, corn at twenty-five cents, and wheat at fifty to sixty cents a bushel. Farmers realized fifty to seventy-five cents a bushel for corn, however, by using it to fatten hogs and cattle. An acquaintance of mine who was manager of a 540-acre farm belonging to "Sam" Allerton, Chicago multimillionaire proprietor of many thousands of acres of rich corn land in central Illinois, told me that he realized fifty-four cents a bushel for all of his corn that year by feeding it to cattle. Mr. Allerton would buy up young steers on the western ranges and ship them in train loads to his large farms to be corn-fattened for the stockyard market in Chicago. I remember that on one occasion my friend received a train-load of young steers shipped all the way from Oregon, on which the freight was $57.60. The steers were bought at less than $10 a head, but after scientific care and feeding for a few months their value was more than doubled. In that manner the corn that in the open market would have brought only twenty-five cents a bushel, netted more than twice that much. Ever since farmers in general have taken to raising stock to feed their surplus grain to, their financial condition has constantly improved.

Wrong expressions frequently used are: "Be sure and come," and "There will only be two people's present." The correct forms are: "Be sure to come," or "Be sure that you come," and "There will be only two persons present."

Perhaps no war in the history of the world brought out so many songs as did our civil conflict. Many of the songs written just before, during or after the fratricidal struggle of '61 to '65 are sung to this day, but others, just as beautiful, are now seldom heard. "Dixie," "Maryland, My Maryland," "Bonnie Blue Flag," and "Listen to the Mocking Bird" were southern favorites, while "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," the "Boys Are Marching," "Just Before the Battle, Mother," "Marching Through Georgia," and "For We'll Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys" were very popular in the north. Two songs of that period often heard were "Lorena," beginning "The years creep slowly by, Lorena, as I watch the dying of the day," and the answer to it, "Paul Vane," "The opening lines of which were 'The years are creeping slowly by, dear Paul, the summer comes and goes.' Both are sweet and very sad. It has been fifty years or more since I heard either of them. Many negro folk songs became popular during and just after the war and still remain so, such as "Swanee River," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," "Old Black Joe," and others.

Away back in the latter years of the preceding century members of the board of supervisors of the Illinois county in which I lived served for $2.50 a day each. The sessions were held quarterly and the entire business of the county was transacted at these meetings, generally. Occasionally a special meeting would be called, but not often. When new bridges were put in, certain supervisors were appointed to look after the completion of the work, this never requiring more than four days' work. Men considered it quite an honor to be elected supervisors and there were spirited contests every spring to decide who should thus represent the people. Members of this board were perfectly satisfied with the emolument of $2.50 a day for many years, until the Populists gained representation for two or three years. Then it was declared by members of this political persuasion that $1.50 a day was ample compensation for the county law-makers. The Populist members hadn't a majority, so their attempt to reduce the amount of the per diem stipend was not successful. However, only one of them refused to accept the usual $2.50 per day, and he got over his obstinacy before long and meekly took the full amount offered him. I don't know what the daily wage of supervisors there is at this time, but I am quite sure it is more than $2.50 a day. They had one habit that was evidently copied from the national lawmakers. This was a mileage allowance of ten cents per mile, and nearly every supervisor computed the amount in terms of the longest way around. If he needed to travel only sixteen miles the nearest way, he'd figure by the longer route of twenty miles or more. Occasionally a rigidly honest man would figure by the shortest route, but not often.
